Don't use the whip on tired nerves — it means trouble

When the day's work is hard, you can't make it easier with stimulants.

Ask any doctor for the facts.

You can't over-draw energy without paying.

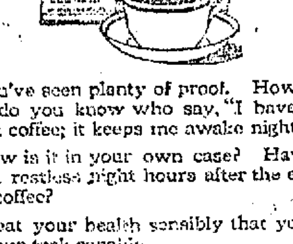

Coffee contains the nerve-stimulating drug, caffeine. When coffee is used to overcome fatigue, it means whipping the tired nerves into a run.

You may seem to get added strength—but there's a settlement coming for an over-drawn account.

Take care!

Rest is the cure for fatigue. Health is the equipment for hard tasks.

Rest and health are interfered with when nerves are over-stimulated.

You've seen plenty of proof. How many people do you know who say, "I have to go slow on coffee; it keeps me awake nights?"

How is it in your own case? Have you counted restless night hours after the evening cup of coffee?

Treat your health sensibly that you may meet your task capably.

Don't try to draw strength from over-driven nerves. That way lies weakness. Don't increase over-work by using stimulants. You are merely postponing and increasing the penalties.

WANTS TO HELP OTHER WOMEN

Grateful for Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I am willing to write to any girl or woman who is suffering from the troubles I had before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back always ached, so I could not go about my housework, and I had other troubles from weakness. I was this way for years, then my sister-in-law took the Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me. In the time I have been taking it and it has done wonders for me. I keep house and am able to do lots of work besides."—Mrs. HELEN SEVCIK, 2711 Thomas St., Chicago, Ill.

Women suffering from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, pains, bearing-down feelings and weakness should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Not only is the worth of this splendid medicine shown by such cases as this, but for nearly fifty years this same sort of experience has been reported by thousands of women.

Mrs. Sevcik is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from such troubles, and answer any questions they may like to ask.

PLEASE PAGE DIOGENES!

His Honest Man Is Found by a Delaware Official.

The man Diogenes sought with a lantern some time ago has been found, says Harvey Hoffnecker, prothonotary of New Castle county, Delaware. An employee of the Du Pont company, drawn as an extra juror near the close of the November session of the Superior court, walked into Hoffnecker's office and handed back the check for $3, given him for one day's service.

The man insisted that he had been in the courtroom only an hour or two and several of the cases scheduled for the day, it was learned, had been settled out of court, and he was not called for service. He said he did not feel the county owed him anything and asked Hoffnecker to return the amount to the treasury, as he had conscientious scruples against taking money he had not earned.

Preferred the Cash.

Youngsters that come in contact with the public become most worldly wise. Johnny shined shoes and knew the ways of the world from intimate, and sometimes bitter, experience. One day a prosperous-looking old gentleman stepped up into the shine stand. He eyed Johnny with a friendly interest.

"Young man, you look like a bright, intelligent young fellow," he remarked.

Johnny looked up at him unimpressed.

"Say mister," he retorted, "I've had that line pulled on me before. What I want to know before we go any further, is this a cash shine or when I get through will you pat me on the head and tell me I'll be governor some day?"—Kansas City Star.

TUESDAY EVENING, MAR. 6, 1923.

SAVING THE PEOPLE'S MONEY.

The Congress which adjourned on Sunday ... expectation by the reductions it was able to make in appropriations. This was in part made possible by the close cooperation between the committees and the heads of the executive departments, but no one thing helped more in this respect than the establishment of the Budget Bureau and the consolidation of the committees of Congress the function of which is to report on appropriations. Instead of numerous committees reporting bills, without knowing what other committees were doing, one committee passed upon all bills before they were submitted to the House. By this method appropriations were kept within the limits of available income.

Extremely valuable service ... reduction of appropriations ... dered by Representative Madden, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. So efficient and fairly did he direct the deliberations of his committee in its consideration of appropriation measures that he won the most cordial commendation of the Democratic member of the committee as expressed by Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts who when speaking on the last appropriation bill submitted, said:

I want to take this opportunity to say to my colleagues that in my eight years of service on the Appropriations Committee, during which I served under some of the ablest men as chairmen I have yet to meet the equal of the present chairman.

Let those Democrats who are disposed to belittle the achievements of Congress in the matter of saving the people's money bear in mind that Chairman Madden was nominated by Republicans, was elected by Republicans aided by a large number of Democrats who know a good man when they see his record and was chosen chairman of the Appropriations Committee by the Republican majority in the House.

The Republican party is entitled to full credit for the good work Mr. Madden and his committee have done. The same can be said of the work of the Senate Appropriations Committee which, under the chairmanship of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, also a Republican, did its full part in curtailing expenditures.

The splendid record of the Republican party in Congress in preventing useless and unnecessary expenditures of public funds will receive the approval of the voters in the campaign of 1924 and with the same heartiness with which Representative Gallivan, a leading Democrat in Congress, has commended the work of the chairman of the committee which cooperated so harmoniously with the budget commissioner and President Harding in keeping faith with the people in curtailing public expenditures.

Harrisburg Telegraph.

Press dispatches from London say that all England is rejoicing over the defeat of the ship subsidy bill. British newspapers say it means renewed life for England's shipping supremacy on the high seas and untold millions for English ship owners, money that would have come to the United States had President Harding's plan been adopted.

In other words, the handful of Democrats responsible for the filibuster which killed the shipping measure in the Senate sold out their own country to England for a mess of political pottage that seems likely to turn bitter before they have finished it.

Little wonder that Senator Pepper speaks bitterly against the filibuster. Here we have another example of a little band of willful Senators deliberately overriding the will of the majority and being allowed to get away with the absurd performance.

Thank heaven that Pennsylvania at least has a Senator fearless enough to speak his mind on the folly of ... irresponsible talk for the ... of a recorded vote.

The liberty of unlimited discussion which is a time-honored but ... prerogative of every Senator, has become the license of the reckless and unscrupulous few to talk to death legislation that a majority of the Senate desires enacted.

Both the Senate and the country suffer from this—the Senate in the estimation of the public in a way it cannot afford—and Senator Pepper will have the support of people everywhere if he endeavors to put his ideas on debate limitations into practice through some workable rule that will choke off discussion when it becomes useless or pernicious.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest

WEALTH.

You'll never find in the bank
The wealth he's stored away;
With millionaires he doesn't rank
But still he's rich today
For all along the busy streets,
Wherever he may go,
From everybody that he meets
He gets a glad 'hello!'

With him the children walk along
And watch him as he goes;
The little fellow who's done a wrong
Comes up and tells his woes.
Even the dogs to feel his pat
Will wag their tails in glee
And there's a sort of wealth in that,
Though bankers disagree.

He owns the good esteem of all,
Rich men can own no more
He dares where'er he may call
A welcome at the door
And though his purse perhaps is thin,
His gold is friend and old,
... rich ... him—
He has a heart of gold.

Here is a wealth you cannot trace
Or reckon to a sum
'Tis found on many a happy face
That lights to see him come
'Tis stored in grateful memories,
And countless friends, and he
Is surely rich possessing these,
Though bankers disagree.

THE YOUTH BEHIND.

Someone will take your place when you are gone
Will come as you to face the morning's thrall
Hear the small talk and bear the burden on
And in his turn the venture will not fail.

You may be brave and wise and quick and strong
You may command with courage and with grace,
But one shall come when you have passed along
And serve with equal splendor in your place

And he may see what you have never seen
May find new ways your feet have never trod,
And he may go where you have never been
For after all, the greatest of us plod

In all the throng you may not see his face,
Secure you seem, and all your prospects fair,
But one there is who waits to take your place
Against our passing, Life has placed him there.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

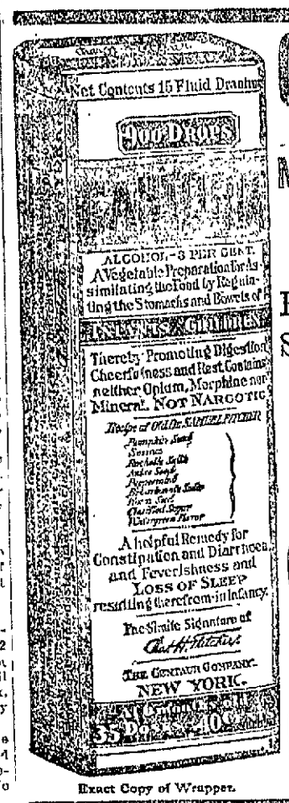

The hands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Carpenter Candy Company Buys Its Present Location

The Carpenter Candy Company has purchased a portion of the property of the White Rock Distilling Company in South Arch street, including the building now occupied by it. When the lease was signed the company was given the option of buying on March 1, 1923 and it exercised the option. The building is a four-story brick structure.

The frontage of the property is about 70 feet on South Arch street and 66 feet in South Alley. The building only covers about half the ground, leaving room for expansion.

CATCHING FISH WITH POISON

Natives of Borneo Have Peculiar Method of Levying Toll on the Finny Tribe.

Along the tributary streams of the Rejang river, in the independent state of Sarawak, on the island of Borneo, the native Sedowans and Dyaks have a unique method of taking fish, and one much superior to dynamiting. Near the mouth of a creek a barrier of latticework is erected. In this space is left an opening wide enough to permit the canoes to pass through. After the boats go up the stream a net is placed across the opening. From 20 to 30 canoes engage in fishing. When the point is reached where operations are to begin, two small dugouts, which have been towed, are emptied of their liquid contents. This muddy-looking concoction is tuba poison from the plant cocculus indicus. The poison is made by pounding the root to shreds and then mixing with water in certain proportions known to the fishermen. Quick results are obtained. In about five minutes stupefied fish begin coming to the surface gasping for breath. The numbers increase with every passing minute. Standing up in their canoes the natives spear the helpless fish with great rapidity. In half an hour the boats are generally filled to capacity. How potent the tuba poison is may be realized by the fact that within half an hour after a few gallons have been poured in a good-sized creek, fish a mile and a half downstream are brought to the surface in considerable numbers. Where the tuba poison method is good is that the poison does not kill the fish—only stupefies them temporarily. Thus all not taken for food soon are normal again.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Weighing and Measuring the Child.

Regularity in weighing and measuring a child furnishes a pretty good guide to his physical condition. A child should be weighed and measured every month and a chart kept. Such a chart could be made out to furnishing a record for a year. The child can be interested in this chart, and if he isn't "getting to be a big boy" as fast as he should, he will be more willing to eat more vegetables, or learn whatever health habit is necessary to correct a poor record.

FLOOD OF COLOR IN NEW FABRICS

Printed Materials in Winsome Hues, Strong Feature of Present Fashions.

THE NEW SILKS AND COTTONS

Designers Have Provided Great Array of Clothes Made Up in Many Styles for Spring and Summer Wear.

An outburst of color is the most salient feature of fashions at the moment. It is almost impossible, observes a prominent fashion authority, to realise the far-reaching effect of this outburst. It is far-reaching not only in the effect that it has on women's dress in general, but upon the trades and industries of the world.

Methods of making fabrics and of adorning them, hitherto unused or long since idle, are now in full swing. All sorts of printing and dyeing processes are affected by fashions. Fashion is more than an influence; it is a vital and powerful stimulus to many of the world's most important industries. It is unfortunate that fashions are treated in a disparaging way by those who do not understand their full significance.

Fashions are not trifling and frivolous. Few realize that not only hundreds, but thousands, of people are set to work when a new fashion goes over, or a great demand is created for special types of materials.

A type of placing embroidery on a fabric to give the appearance of printing is seen on a model which consists of a smart robe-manteaux of navy blue serge and royal blue crepe mongol, a silk crepe almost as heavy as a wool serge. The dark serge is covered with deep royal blue silk. The pattern is so executed that the royal blue embroidery stands out almost as a background on certain parts of the dress, while in other parts the ornamentation is so light that it seems to be only a slight interweaving of bright blue on the deep navy background.

Every Wardrobe Must Have One.

There is no doubt about the fact that many and various printed silks and cottons will be worn, made up in many and various manners. Everybody has gone wild upon the subject; and unless a collection of clothes contains one or more of these printed costumes then it is not to be noticed in the polite society of clothes. The prints are done very simply. There is not the slightest indication of trimming. But there is every evidence of the attention to design which the character of the printing of the silks calls for. As one looks around at the collection of printed silk dresses which has already appeared upon the market, there seems to be not a single violation of the principles of correct design.

Silk is evidently the thing for the spring months, but there are some tweed and homespun suits and skirts which are certainly worthy of some notice and consideration. At the moment there is what is called the "natural" colored tweed suit and it is as fashionable as it can be. For instance, a girl will wear a suit of this variety with a striped and brilliantly colored scarf, and she will be able to create, with the addition of a fine sports hat, the effect of the smartest sort of an outdoors person. Then there are the tweed dresses made all in one piece, which are still extremely charming and which carry with them all that feeling of style that the average modern girl demands for her own appearance. They are made quite simply on the one-piece model, but they are so correctly bound about their edges and so finished, according to the standards of perfection, that they stand alone as important elements in the popular demands of the fashionable world.

Coat Dress of Navy Blue Serge and Royal Blue Crepe With Embroidery Done in the Same Shades of Blue.

The Wrapping Coats.

Added to these one-piece frocks there are the wrapping coats that are made in three-quarter length. They are full and ample in their proportions with wide sleeves and wrapping skirt portions. They are made to fold about the figure over the one-piece dresses, so that they form an element of style that is entirely in accordance with the popular conceptions of fashion as it is understood by the smart women who are making the styles of the moment a popular success.

For the South they are wearing not only whole frocks of printed silks and cottons but those that are made up of a combination of a printed and a plain material. This fact is illustrated by a dress that has its lower section made of a print that runs, in stripes, on to the upper section of the costume. The lower portion is made of a print of blue on a white background and the upper section is made of a plain and heavy quality of dark blue crepe on to which the stripes of the printed material run in a succession of decorative stripes. Outlining the sleeve edges there are facings of white which serve to accentuate the principles of the design of the garment and the whole dress appears as one of the best examples of the art of the American designer as applied to the figure of the American woman.

Around the waist of this frock there is tied a plain and unadorned version of the Deauville scarf. The dress happens to be a combination of dark blue and white and the handkerchief, curiously enough, is made of a square of pure white silk bound with a narrow little edging of dark blue grosgrain ribbon. It serves as just the proper sort of belt for the dress and, at the same time, it happens to be a finish for the dress which is made up of the two colors.

The white, then, is set in at the long armholes, with a slender bit of blue edging to contrast with the finish of the scarf about the lowered waistline and the design of the dress becomes, with that addition, something that is entirely complete in itself, and that is fitted to stand the competition of a whole season with the persistence of a fashionable thing that is destined to outlast the demands of a season, no matter what may be the points that are exhibited to show what that season is up to in the way of style.

Cotton Thread Embroidery.

French dressmakers always have used considerable cotton thread in their embroideries on silk and wool materials. Hence, that clever artist in the details of needlework, uses ordinary white sewing cotton for a very casual appearing embroidery on a silk frock. Other French makers work out what appears to be printed patterns in cotton threads of bright colors, such as blue, rose, green and purple.

Color, as allied to millinery, is important. Several prominent French milliners are continuing this spring the vogue for pink in combination with black, as brought out late last season. This spring has ever, the pinks are deeper, nearer the coral tones. Such shades as these are used to face hats of black straw and as trimmings. There is a great demand for ribbon in these shades, both wide and narrow. An unusual use of narrow moire ribbon is seen in upstanding rows which completely cover the brims of hats. Very interesting and daring hats have arrived from Paris in combinations of bright orange and black.

One can predict with more assurance about color than about shapes in spring millinery. In shapes modistes are practically trying out new ideas. At the beginning of each season there is always a varied collection. There is one point in this respect, however, upon which all hat makers appear to agree and that is the poke bonnet of both medium and small size.

Veils are important for spring. This will be good news to the very feminine type of woman who always finds this little detail of dress particularly becoming. The lacy veil that just falls over the brim of the hat is well liked.

Frock of Printed and Plain Silk in Dark Blue and White Is One of the Predicted Leaders for Spring.

A Laxative Food that is delicious

YOU never knew before how truly delicious a breakfast of real bran food can be. Post's Bran Flakes with Other Parts of Wheat is altogether new and not a bit like the ordinary bran you may have persuaded yourself to eat in the past.

These new flakes are made by a special process, which retains with the bran other valuable parts of the wheat berry, and are crisp-cooked and appetizing. They contain the nourishing qualities of the wheat, its carbohydrates, proteins and mineral elements, plus "Nature's way" of wheat bran to induce regular habits. Post's Bran Flakes are non-irritating to any part of the digestive tract.

Happily the special process preserves practically the full vitamin content of the wheat.

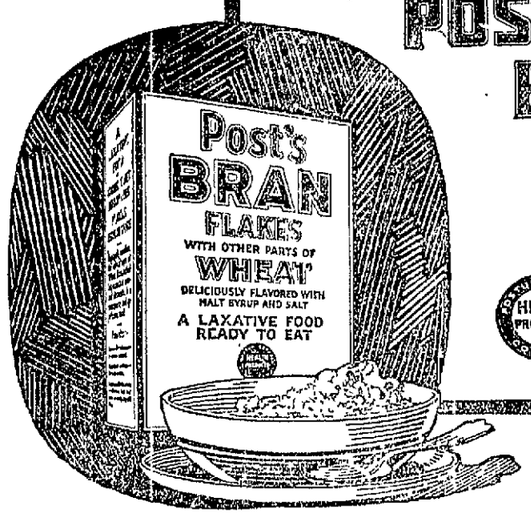

The Postum Cereal Company studied and experimented for four years to find how to give you this most valuable hygienic factor, bran, in the most palatable and health promoting form.

Post's Bran Flakes is the result of those years of careful study by the Company whose name is synonomous with pure food the world over.

No chokey feeling when you swallow these delicate flakes. You don't have to try to swallow them, either, the way you do ordinary bran products.

Try them with cream or milk as your breakfast cereal tomorrow, and regularly for some days—then note the welcome difference in your regularity.

This Little Bungalow Has Distinctiveness That Will Make It Stand Out In Any City—Convenient Arrangement.

By WILLIAM A RADFORD

There is a decided tendency in America today to build smaller homes. Many homeseekers no longer seem to care for a large house but are preferring small, compact and cosy bungalows. They realize it doesn't take such a great deal of space to live happily and comfortably. A bungalow is much easier to take care of and may be furnished so much more economically and still attractively.

The modern apartment buildings invented and are responsible for the popularity of the small living quarters. After enjoying the advantages, conveniences and labor-saving efficiency of apartments many people were no longer satisfied with a large house after they had moved into a private home. Then they found that the small little homes like the one shown in the accompanying photograph offered all the advantages of an apartment house without any of the disadvantages they frequently have.

This little bungalow is especially designed for those homeseekers who prefer a stucco home, yet one that is small and comfortable. It has a distinctiveness that will make it stand out in any city. It will attract the attention of every passer-by for its beauty and aristocratic appearance It is a place that you will look forward going to, a place you will be proud to point out as your home.

Floor Plan.

One of the most desirable features—also a most important one—is the economical cost at which this residence could be built Your local dealer and builder will be able to quote you reasonable figures for it is constructed of regular, substantial and permanent materials. It is well put together, will last a long time and give excellent service.

The interior arrangement is very pleasing and convenient. The living room, two bedrooms and bath are located on one side of the house, while the vestibule, dining room, breakfast room and kitchen occupy the other half The rooms are all large and comfortable and are well lighted and ventilated.

They have remembered in designing this bungalow that first of all a home should have a comfortable atmosphere They have made provision for all the features that make your home what it should be—the place you enjoy going to most.

From the front porch you enter the vestibule, which is 6 by 6 feet. Directly to the right is a coat closet and built-in seat, providing a very handy place. The living room, directly to the left of the vestibule, can be furnished very attractively and comfortably as it is an excellent size, 14 feet 6 inches by 12 feet. It has four windows facing the street and three on the side. On one side of the room is a genuine fireplace, a built-in seat and built-in bookcases.

Directly ahead of the vestibule is the dining room, a particularly convenient size, being 11 by 12 feet. One of the most attractive features in this charming bungalow is the neat little breakfast room just between the dining room and kitchen with table and seats to accommodate four.

The kitchen, not too large or too small, is a practical size that every housewife will appreciate. It is small enough to save steps, yet there is plenty of space for all the equipment she needs. It opens onto the back platform

The two bedrooms and bath open onto a short hall that is entered from the dining room. The bathroom is located just between the two bedrooms. The bedrooms are very comfortable, both being 11 by 12 feet. There are two windows in one room and three in the other arranged so there always will be plenty of fresh air One room is equipped with a space saving closet similar to those installed in most high-class apartment hotels.

An attractive small home such as this can be built of cement stucco on concrete blocks or tile, or on metal lath placed on wood studs without the inclusion of sheathing, and then plastered both outside and in. The metal lath makes a rigid reinforced concrete exterior which fully protects the wood frame, and is of itself practically indestructible

The house is 24 feet 6 inches by 46 feet 6 inches and sits well on a good-sized lot, leaving plenty of space for a beautiful lawn.

Fig Juice Used to Dye Cloth.

As far back as history goes the fig tree has been a house-yard tree "Beneath the vine and fig tree" is used more than once in the Old Testament to designate "home" For centuries the fruit, fresh or dried has made up a large part of the food of the natives of western Asia and southern Europe. Its juice is used to make a drink, and also to dye cloth. Its leaves polish ivory and the bark makes cord. The sap of one species is poisonous

The fig tree, in climates congenial to its growth, produces two and sometimes three crops of fruit the same year, on distinct shoots The trees grow readily from cuttings, and are propagated by budding, grafting, and seeds The large, beautiful leaves are deciduous, palmately veined, three-to-five lobed, wavy-margined, and somewhat rough and leathery

Washington's First Inauguration.

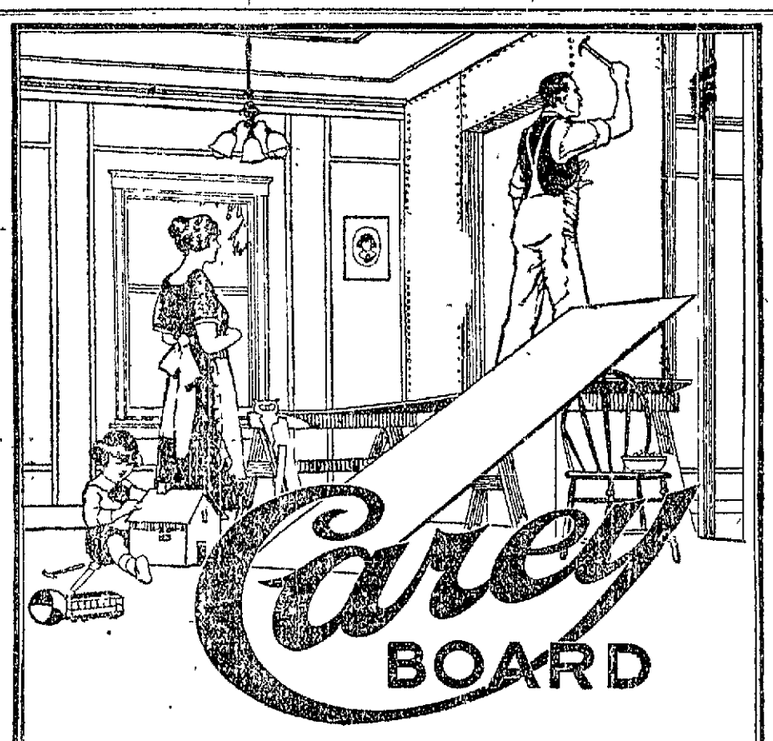

March 4 marks the beginning and end of congresses of the United States. March 4, though not the anniversary of the first inauguration of George Washington as President, is the anniversary of the day when the new-born United States began proceedings under the Constitution.

The first Wednesday in March of 1789 fell on March 4, which therefore, became the inaugural day of the government of the United States of America

It was April 30, 1789 before George Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States Since then, however, Presidents have been inaugurated on March 4, with a few variations, due to caution when that date happened to fall on Sunday.

Colorful Tiled Floors.

Tiled floors are being used more than ever They are sanitary, easily kept clean and very attractive They are used in many rooms, though predominating in bathroom, sun parlor and kitchen Some of the colors obtained are various shades of green and dull blue, rich dark reds and lovely creams and yellows makes beautiful rooms at small expense

Are Lumber Retailers Profiteers?

Read what W. B. Stayer, secretary of the Retail Lumber Dealers Association of Pennsylvania, has to say on this subject. You'll be interested to know what a man in a position to know thinks of lumber conditions.

RETAIL LUMBER DEALERS ASSOCIATION OF PENNSYLVANIA

725-730 Park Building,
Pittsburgh
January 29th, 1923.

Mr. W. E Mier,
Keystone Planing Mill,
Connellsville, Pa.

Dear Mr Mier:

In answer to your question as to profits in the Lumber and Planing Mill Business I have the following information, gleaned by research and careful investigation by this Association over a period of years:

From the top of the Second National Bank Building in Connellsville (in which our offices are located) if it were possible for you to turn back the wheels of Father Time 80 years, you would see a virgin forest to the East, West, North and South What has become of this forest? It has given away to the onward march of civilization and progress The virgin forest that reigned through the past had to bow in humble submission to the slogan of our Forefathers who heard a voice calling to them "Westward! Westward! goes the tide of civilization."

Much of the virgin forest we spoke of stands today concealed in the buildings and homes of your community.

Today we are going South to the Gulf of Mexico and West to the Pacific Ocean for Lumber that once grew in bountiful supply in our own state. The freight charges on the material used today in Pennsylvania cost four times as much as the lumber that grew native here.

The foregoing is history that men now living can verify This explains the increase of prices which cover a period of two generations. Did the thought ever come to you that the Lumber business is one in which few fortunes have been made? From the saw mill man of manufacturer, the wholesaler down to the retail lumberman, statistics show a greater percentage of failures than is the average in any other kind of legitimate business The same is true of contractors.

In the Retail business the work is hard, the responsibility is great, the investment of money is tremendous and the equipment used is expensive to buy and costly to operate We still must blaze the way over fields, through mud, through hill and vale in our deliveries for streets and highways only follow after we have performed the duty of Home and Industry Building.

Counting the great responsibility and investment a fair public will have to pay a fair price for quality and service Do you know that no Pennsylvania Retail Lumberman has ever made a million dollars in his business? Few of them have ever grown even well-to-do If you will investigate the few that ride around in limousines you will find they made their money in outside business.

In many other businesses a merchant can send a messenger boy out with a delivery valued at from $100 00 to $1,500.00 and even much more To make such a delivery in the Lumber business would require from one to fifteen trips with a truck.

The Building Material Business is the largest industry in America gauged by dollars Its profits are very very low and the service required is exceptionally exacting in character

Now, Mr. Mier, as regards to what an honest profit in the Lumber and Planing Business should be. I can only say that the following alone can determine what a profit should be in any community:

First—The cost of the material sold

Second—The overhead expense of handling this material. This overhead expense rightly must include living wages for our workmen.

Third—A profit that will warrant entering business and putting American Industry and Enthusiasm into the upbuilding of the Community. High class bonds are offered on the market today which pay a better net income, with no work, than the average net earnings of the Retail Lumbermen of Pennsylvania have been in the last thirty years

I have analyzed the Retail market prices in vogue in your community and find them more than fair to the public.

BURIED ARM PAINED MAN

Patient Complained of Suffering Until Shorn Member Was Dug Up

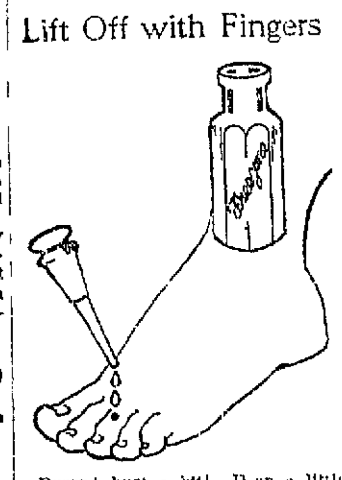

Yielding to persistent pleading of Lloyd Latham, a patient in a hospital at Fredericksburg, Va., who complained that his amputated arm pained him the authorities exhumed and reburied Latham's arm, which had been severed close to the shoulder by a saw at a mill in Culpeper county.

Latham had been rushed to the hospital after first aid treatment. Immediately after regaining consciousness he began to complain of pain similar to what he would have felt if his arm was still a part of his body, but cramped or bent in an unnatural position.

Efforts were made to relieve his mind, but he pleaded so hard and complained so constantly of steadily increasing pain that it was decided to dig up the severed arm. The physicians found it in exactly the position Latham had described. The arm was straightened and reburied. Since then Latham has made no complaint.

FINISH POULTRY FOR MARKET

Plump, Well Fattened Fowl Will Bring More Money and Sell Far More Readily

No up to date farmer would think of marketing his cattle or hogs in a poor or unfinished condition because to do so would mean a loss of money, but on many farms poultry is seldom properly finished before marketing. A plump, well finished bird will sell more readily and bring a few cents more per pound, besides being worth more on account of the increase in weight than a poor scrawny fowl. Moreover, producing finished poultry is a quick business and profits are soon realized.

PICKING OUT BEST PULLETS

Fowl Should Possess Carriage and Appearance of Vigor for Production of Eggs

A good laying pullet will have the carriage and appearance of vigor that go with egg production. The pullets should be well grown with fairly long back, well rounded breast, with good depth of body from the middle of the back to the center of the keel bone. The keel should be long and carried well forward and at the same time should extend well backward. The skin should be soft and pliable over the keel and around the abdomen.

Grip Left You a Bad Back?

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself a victim of backache? Are you suffering headaches, too, dizzy spells, a dull, tired, worn-out feeling and annoying kidney irregularities? Then don't delay! Physicians agree that a vast number of the worst cases of kidney trouble are the result of germ diseases. In every infectious disease the system is alive with poisonous germs and bacteria. The kidneys are overwhelmed with the rush of new work, they break down, become congested, inflamed and diseased. Too often the real trouble is lost sight of until some dangerous kidney ailment sets in. If your kidneys are falling behind, don't wait for serious trouble. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills to-day. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Read How These Connellsville Folks Found Relief:

MRS. L. FLYNN, 151 3rd St., says: "I had an attack of kidney complaint and I was so tired with sharp pains that shot through my back. I had lumbago attacks that caused my back to be lame and my kidneys were sluggish. I had dizzy spells when my head seemed to swim and specks appeared before my eyes. I purchased Doan's Kidney Pills at Brightley's Pharmacy and used two boxes. My back became strong and my kidneys regulated. Doan's cured me."

O. R. JACKSON, hotel manager, Crawford ave., says: "I was working in Oklahoma doing strenuous labor and my back ached and my kidneys became congested. I felt dull and listless and had headaches that caused me to be all out of sorts. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and purchased a box at [illegible] Drug Co. They put me in fine condition. The backache eased and my kidneys acted regularly. I was cured and I think Doan's are all right."

MRS. ELLELA ANDERSON, 601 York Ave., says: "I was bothered with terrible backaches which caused misery for hours at a time. When I washed or swept [illegible] [illegible] pains in my back that felt as though a red hot iron had been plunged in my spine. I had dizzy spells and specks appeared before my eyes. I was nearly blind from the after effects of these attacks. My kidneys were sluggish, too. I purchased Doan's Kidney Pills from Moore's Drug Store and after using them I was cured."

How To Forget Troubles

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 80 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

BRITAIN HAS SOCIETY LIKE KU KLUX KLAN

Order of Crusaders Said to Be Similar in Aims to the K. K. K. and Fascisti.

A strange secret society known as the Order of the Crusaders, which seems to blend with an antique ritual certain points in resemblance to the Ku Klux Klan of the United States and the Fascisti of Italy, has sprung up in England.

According to a member of the order, it was founded two years ago. During the last two months it has been conducting an intensive campaign for membership and while it refuses to divulge the number of its members, it asserts it has them in every section of Great Britain.

The avowed object of the society is to bring the spirit of the crusader to everyday life.

Meetings of the order are held behind closed doors. On ceremonial occasions the members are dressed in [illegible] [illegible]. Officers wear crimson robes with a large white cross on the left side and other members adopt black robes with a white triple cross on the breast of which is a red cross.

Some of the emblems of the order are suggestive of a different purpose, how ever, for the ritual a sword is [illegible] to symbolize service, spurs [illegible] worn to represent chivalry and loyalty is expressed by carrying banners.

The literature of the order states that it aims at founding in [illegible] [illegible] of each town and in every large village a conclave of Crusaders composed of real leaders of public opinion. Later on they plan to get Crusaders into parliament, on county and local councils, in the churches and out of them.

The initiation as regards the place and ceremony closely resembles the Ku Klux Klan.

When a candidate is initiated he is expected to make a donation of £2 or more, there being no limit to the used by [illegible] officials as they [illegible].

Unity Frat and Casey Club Meet Tonight in Important Game; Double-Header on Tap

St. Vincent Team Will Meet American Legion Five in Second Game.

FANS ARE INTERESTED

Tonight's the night! At least in the City League it is the big night. The supremacy of the Casey Club will be given a real test when that team and the Unity Fraternity clash. If the Frat quintet comes off a victor it will result in a tie for first place between the two teams but if the result is the other way, the Caseys will be just that much further ahead of every other team. A Frat victory might turn the league race into intense rivalry as the St. Vincent crew would then have a chance to even things up also as each of the three fives mentioned would have two defeats chalked up against them.

The Casey five will present its strongest front, but the Fraternity quintet feels confident in the coming clash after the demonstration the Baltimore & Ohio five staged just one week ago today against the same K of C outfit. Fans are much interested in the game as they also realize many future events in the league may hinge on the outcome of tonight's fracas.

Additional interest in the games is added because of the double bill being presented. The second contest will be between the St. Vincent five and the American Legion. The Legion, capable of better playing, showed rather poor form against the Frat last Thursday but will buck up tonight in meeting the Green five. All in all tonight's program, including the three leading teams in the league is one of the best cards sporting fans could desire to see. Many fans are under the impression that a heavy admission is charged for the two games when the price is only 30 cents at any time. There will be one raise this season on Thursday, March 15 which will be "Booster Day" in the league. At that time it will cost 50 cents to see the two clashes. There are seats for all.

M'CORMICK AMONG LEADING SCORERS IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

According to figures compiled at a meeting of officials of the W. P. I. A. League, held in Pittsburg Saturday, "Mickey" McCormick stands high among the individual scorers of the league. His final standing could not be announced at all the figures are not in. He is tied with Reed of Braddock for goals from the free line.

The playoffs for the league title will begin Wednesday, March 7. At that time Avalon will meet Homestead. The winners in the various sections, beginning with Section 1, following in consecutive order: Allegheny, Avalon, Braddock, Beaver Falls, Monessen, Kittanning, Homestead.

Floor Notes.

The City League games on Thursday will bring the Casey Club and St. Vincent together again and will also feature the Baltimore & Ohio five against the American Legion. Next Tuesday the Unity Fraternity will meet the Baltimore & Ohio. The railroaders have defeated the other two leaders and are now after the scalp of the Frat. The second game next Tuesday will of necessity be another game between the Casey and St. Vincent teams as it is one of the clashes played earlier in the season by the Firemen. St. Vincent is making up the games played by that team in order that the season may end as scheduled on March 29.

* * *

The Unity Fraternity goes to Smithton Friday night. The Smithton Independents are very strong on the home floor and the locals will have a hard nut to crack.

* * *

When the American Legion meets the Casey Club again on March 15 for the third clash of the series of three in the league, the former soldiers will again present their strongest line-up. It is the ambition of the Legion to hold a defeat over the K. of C. rivals.

* * *

The old-timers who are finding out what kind of basketball is played in the City League are coming back tonight and are bringing their friends with them.

* * *

Don LaRue, of the High School team has been wanting to play a forward position all season. He was given a chance to show his goods in the Scottdale game. Coach White had him to replace Lallew at his guard.

* * *

The local High basketeers are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the all-scholastic selections.

* * *

This evening Perry Township will play Brownsville High at Perryopolis. On Wednesday the team will go to Belle Vernon for a game in the afternoon. The game will determine the title in that section of the Fayette County Interscholastic Athletic League.

* * *

With the approach of the end of the month attention of athletes will turn to outdoor sports. Connellsville High will have no basketball team out the school will go in for track this year.

High School Has Washington Here On Friday Night

Connellsville High School has a game scheduled for Friday evening that will bring out a crowd as large as that which attended the Braddock game. It is with Washington High School. That team of five husky youths who generally fight out a neck and neck race with the Orange and Black dribblers until the last whistle settles the scrap by a lean margin.

The Washington Boys have the speed, a factor produced by playing on the big college town floor and are accurate shots. Although the Cokers have been rather erratic all season, they have always produced when results were necessary and in meeting Washington the team will show up to its best form.

The High School games are drawing to a close. The season may be considered a successful one in view of the fact that out of the number played to date 19 have been won and 10 lost. Only a few more home clashes remain on the schedule and the Washington game is one of the best.

The Custard Cup

COPYRIGHT by GEORGE H DORAN COMPANY

During all these transactions Mrs Penfield had been merely an attentive bit of background, but in the following few minutes she was called upon to take an active stand. It proved to be no simple matter to get Miss Lettie out of the store. She was curious and she had been in the purchases on her tentative list that she had scarcely cast a comprehending glance at other commodities, but now that her responsibility was over and her cash exhausted she turned a fascinated eye upon tables and counters of alluring articles.

Lettie had never had anything to do with stores. This was the first time in her life that she had ever had anything. The bustle, the glitter, the endless aisles, was more than her imagination, filled her with a frenzy of intoxication. Little cars with wheels that turned, dime banks that looked like the most blooming peaches on Mrs. Penfield's wall, games, books, toys! Marbles! Imagine twenty four round pieces of glass for the ridiculous sum of five cents! How happy Crink would be! How Thad's soft eyes would tube! It was more than could be borne.

"I don't care," Lettie burst into frantic sobs but ... over a wide circle. "I don't care! Do you hear? I don't care." Tears streamed down her face. She stamped her foot and swung her free arm with a violence and latitude that first cracked several astonished shoppers and then led to a somewhat freer space around the child.

"Lettie, dear," expostulated Mrs. Penfield hurriedly, "remember where you are."

"I don't," shrieked Lettie. "That's what's the matter. I don't care. Some day I'll have things—oceans and heaps and oceans of things—millions more than they've got here. I just—"

"Lettie!" There was a finality in the word; there was also an expression in the grasp of her arm. With swift skill Mrs. Penfield pushed her through the curious crowd out of the store to the comparative seclusion of a cross street.

"Lettie," she said sadly, "I'm ashamed of you, making a scene that way. I thought you were—"

"Oh, I know," interrupted the child. "I'm as full's I can be. But I get so full thinking I could just bust. I had to let 'er out. I get so dangerous inside with them things." Her voice was frayed with suppressed sobs. "Honest, Why, Crink and Thad would be tickled."

"No, Lettie," interposed Mrs. Penfield as they went on slowly, "they wouldn't. ... the world wasn't never fixed up so it's fair as that. ... things that ... the folks that know the ... When you get a little older you'll see that the reason rich folks are unhappy is 'cause they got things, 'and the reason poor folks are unhappy is 'cause they want things. When folks get through twisting their heads ... and their thoughts ... things, then the world'll be all ... than it is now."

Lettie's eyes were wide with reproach. "Why, Penny, you don't mean that Crink and Thad wouldn't like some of those—"

"Go, Lettie, no, I don't mean they wouldn't. ... But I mean they'll be just as happy without them if you don't go and ... thoughts that you've twisted in your own head. Christmas ... presents, it's feelings. And there's one thing you ought to keep in mind. It's a waste of good food to ... if there ain't at least two other folks happier 'cause of ... ."

Lettie's ... a smile chased across her face. "I got you," she replied. "It's up to me to ... something."

"Yes, Lettie dear, it's up to you right now, today."

"Ain't I the limit!" cried Lettie in disgust. "All time forgetting what I'm trying to remember. ... I'll show you, I will."

It was long past lunch time when Crink returned with the tree and he tried many hours before he accomplished a base that would support it in a corner of the living room. But no sooner was the fragrant fir in place than every little Penfield felt that Christmas was an assured fact.

Lettie meantime was making picture puzzles, mounting illustrations from Weatherstone magazines on pasteboard from old boxes and cutting them into fantastic shapes. Each puzzle was put in an envelope ... with the name ... and who would ... the puzzle.

By the following evening the preparations had taken ... at turn ... gathered about the table in the living room to make lists. The tablet paper was ... uniform pieces ... had been brought ... and ... with black and red were taken from a ... which was then folded once and smoothed flat. The ... interesting ... some of which ... up ... into clearer ... .

Uncle Jerry was the ... interpreter of these ... the only ... of the ... complete ... the ... .

Lettie's keen gaze soon discovered that the processes of interpreting and composing led to whispered conferences and much laughter that was not shared with the family, also that Uncle Jerry's eyes were more twinkly than ever and that Miss Hapgood's cheeks grew pink and pinker.

Lettie leaned confidentially across the table. "Say, Miss Hapgood," she inquired pleasantly, "are you having a pretty good time?"

"Lettie, 'tend to your blots," put in Mrs. Penfield firmly.

"Yes'm." Lettie subsided but with the vague feeling that her geniality had not been received in the right spirit.

CHAPTER XVIII

Christmas in the Custard Cup.

"I'm going to invite Bonnie Geraldine to the tree," caroled Lettie on the final morning of the Christmas preparations.

It was the climax of her hospitality, and was so considered by the family. Mrs. Penfield had agreed to men, women, children and dogs, but when it came to hens her enthusiasm waned. Her formal objection was based on Bonnie Geraldine's timid nature and the temperamental anguish which she might endure if forced to meet society in the mass, but Lettie proposed to ease the sensibilities of the young Plymouth Rock by bringing her in a box, tethered to remain therein. The matter was discussed but left to circumstances for final decision.

Lorene and Dick Chase had returned from their honeymoon and had accepted their invitation.

"We'll ask her to sing," decided Crink, who had a wary eye out for the entertainment of the guests whom Lettie was zealously assembling.

"Indeed you won't," exclaimed Mrs. Penfield, looking up in shocked surprise from the candy bag she was making out of an old net curtain. "I'd be shamed to death if you asked Lorene. Why, Crink, don't you know she's been in a choir for a year and then paid for it? Ain't never polite to ask a person to sing free after he's learned how."

"P..." cried Crink. "Ain't that the cuter limit? Well, say, Penny, I could just tell her how grand I think she ... and mebbe she'd of ... ."

"It has been done," smiled Mrs. Penfield. "That's about the only polite way to manage it."

Lettie down on the floor with Crink and Thad untangling ... of colored ... that had been collected through many months, looked up in dismay. "Landy gracious, Lettie, have we got to ... everything ... no say to the party?"

"Now you've got it," chuckled Uncle Jerry, the expert corn popper. "Minute you go in for high life, you get into difficulties." He emptied the final contribution into the pan of fragrant popped corn and added the old ... looked down on the three solemn youngsters with a twinkle in his merry eyes. "Seeing as you're going in for parties there's a few rules you'll have to learn. First one is, there's two things you ain't never to talk 'bout fore outsiders. One's your soul and the other's your toothbrush. ... your own private property and nobody else cares a hang."

"Huh!" ... Lettie. "If that's all the ... to it I got it learned already."

"... there is to it, Lettie," laughed Mrs. Penfield. "If it's rules you want, I'll give you one that'll be simple to remember and it'll cover the whole ground too. If you want folks to have a good time in your house all you got to do is to forget yourself and feel friendly. If you'll keep those two things working in your heart you won't go far wrong in any entertaining."

"Car line," commented Jerry Winston with ... 'you can sure ... for taking the short cuts."

"I shouldn't wonder," she returned good naturedly. "I like the easy way ... It's so much easier. Besides I never heard that you got any more ... 'cause you was scratched with nettles while you picked 'em. Seems like a lot of folks measure results by the pain they suffered bringing 'em about. Lettie, you'd better turn your candy out on a plate, and we'll figure how much to allow to a bag. I'm going to season the popcorn while it's hot."

He picked up his hat. "I'll be back in a little while. I got a notion I can ... something for the dinner tomorrow."

"Oh, Uncle Jerry," protested Mrs. Penfield. "I got everything planned. We're going to have—"

"You will, till I get back 'fore you ... " interrupted Uncle Jerry and he went out so quickly that Mrs. Penfield's expostulations fell on the empty air.

Repeated counting failed to shake the ... that Lady ... had yielded only forty eight candies. Three were apportioned to each bag of popcorn since only the younger ... were to receive this particular treat.

Early in the afternoon Mrs. Sanders came ... Number 17 and brought three parcels tied with red ribbons.

"They're for the children," she smiled.

MONK DECLARED A SPY BY PARIS HAD LURID PAST

Led Life of Adventure That Rivals Any Novelist's Creation.

DECREE OF EXPULSION ISSUED

Thrice Expelled as Undesirable Alien and Imprisoned Many Times, According to Police Statements—Arrested as Spy During War He Makes His Escape Into Germany by Bribery—Writes Propaganda Against the French

One of the most curious lives of adventure has just been unveiled in Paris when the French government issued a decree of expulsion against the Benedictine priest Victor Bede alias Clement Deltour alias Geza Barnes an Austrian subject who the French police claim is a notorious international spy.

The life of this man, better known as Barnes, can easily rival any novelist's creation. He is still at large in France, although he was thrice expelled as an undesirable alien and has been imprisoned many times, according to police statements.

Born at Budapest or Ropolya on May 25, 1862, Geza Barnes entered a monastery when young but soon discarded his religious robe. After years of international vagabondage Barnes finally was expelled from Belgium as a crook in 1905, but calmly entered France.

Here for a year he was a well known figure at all resorts but complaints piled up to such an extent that France was forced to throw him out the following year. Then Barnes disappeared from view for many years but reappeared in official eyes at the outbreak of the World war.

Friend Keep Him In France.

He was then living at Leveq, which is at the edge of Paris, with his wife, a German woman, a German maid, two daughters and a son born after various intrigues. When war was declared he was known as Clement Deltour, editor of an important magazine devoted to questions of diplomacy. Due to prominent friends Deltour managed to obtain permission to remain in France, although an Austrian subject.

He rushed home the first day of the war and took his whole family on a motor trip to Marvejols where he installed them in a villa. Returning to Paris after [illegible] dealings Deltour [illegible] to obtain the post of an interpreter to the first court martial of the [illegible] government in Paris August 11, 1914.

After a few months in his new position a noted Austrian spy was arrested near a military school in the outskirts of Paris. Being left alone with the [illegible] for a few minutes observers [illegible] Deltour giving him valuable [illegible] confidential information. After that he was watched carefully.

In October 1914 Deltour asked for a ten days leave of absence in order to visit friends in Paris. This was immediately granted in order to see what he would do. First he went to visit his family, then he entered the zone of military operations and then he returned to his family. The night he arrived home he was arrested and imprisoned on the charge of entering the army zone without permission illegally wearing decorations. At that time it was found he had $9,000 in his pocket. He was sentenced to a year's imprisonment in the town of Orleans and fined $10.

While in Orleans new charges were examined which claimed that he had entered the service as interpreter to spy—his relations with the enemy, communication of military secrets, intelligence with the enemy by using signal lites and destruction of important papers, but the [illegible] owing to the lack of definite proof. However after his year's imprisonment Deltour was sent to a concentration camp in the south of France near Arles.

Bribes Way Out of Camp.

There one thought [illegible] escape. By bribery he obtained a false Italian passport and a peasant's disguise. A strange wire reached the camp too late signed Missy, the famous [illegible] of Ca[illegible] who was [illegible] the war [illegible] that Deltour be [illegible] as a [illegible] internal in Germany. Although too young for [illegible] he managed to change the date of his birth on the [illegible] and his name appeared on the list of exchange prisoners which was drawn up by government officials.

By this method of bribing he was duly sent to the Swiss frontier and allowed to enter Germany. Reaching Munich Deltour rejoined his wife and children and became a member of the German propaganda service. In this capacity he wrote a large volume of his experiences in Paris during the war which was filled with lies and hatred against France. About 40,000 copies of this book were distributed by the government along the German front lines. He wrote for newspapers and lectured daily for the purpose of helping German soldiers to destroy the French race.

Appearing now under the name of [illegible] Deltour [illegible] his [illegible] [illegible] against France. [illegible]
